

1. ALICIA VICTORIA stands for naturalness and consistency. Their bags use leather from organic farmers that is chrome-free and vegetable-tanned. Every product is unique as the natural characteristics of the leather are allowed to show through—scars, holes, mosquito bites—these are not taboos, they are desired! This individuality comes from the fact that the brand uses leather holistically. Areas that are normally discarded are transformed into design elements instead. aliciavictoria.de

2. The Artisanal Josa Collage Heeled Boots by PEET DULLAERT feature a 24K gold hand-plated brass collage that is hand-sewn. The boots are shaped in a textured, hand-painted, vegan suede fabric. Each shoe is uniquely stamped by hand with the brand's logo. peetdullaert.com

3. NUMBERING is a genderless jewellery brand that presents sustainable and cruelty-free production. The brand adds a variety of new shades for precious metals to its rings, bracelets and necklaces. The new collection allows anyone to personalize the volume of their jewellery, either by layering or mixing and matching with bolder items. numberingwebsite.com

4. REMEANT is a high-quality, colourful and innovative textile made from upcycled single-use plastics. Due to the creation process, each piece of fabric produced is unique. REMEANT's durable and fashionable products encourage a slow approach to fashion for lasting, one-of-a-kind-products that will keep their appearance and their colour as vivid as the day you got them. remeant.com

5. LUSQUINOS is deeply committed to following procedures to produce the lowest possible carbon footprint. All components used in the manufacturing of their shoes are internationally certified, including their natural and harmlessly harvested crepe and cork components. LUSQUINOS is completely environmentally friendly. Their shoes are organic from sole to lace, manufactured locally in northern Portugal without plastic, metal or chemicals. lusquinos.com

6. From idea to design to finished garment, ANNETTE RUFEGER's collection fits because no one has to pretend for her. It is made so that everyone can find their own style and feel comfortable in it. This cosy blouson in pastel shades promises a good mood! The cut features a kimono sleeve with a special gusset shape, making for the perfect fit. The extra wide knit cuff also adds shape and figure. annetterufeger.de

7. FILIPPA K debuts its Autumn/Winter 2021 collection, What Lies Within. The designs return to the brand's core values—authenticity, confidence and simplicity—while looking forward with a renewed sense of self-assurance. Through a less-is-more design approach, FILIPPA K empowers the wearer to find strength in who they are. filippa-k.com

8. Contemporary sustainable fashion and lifestyle brand SABINNA is delighted to announce its latest limited-edition collaboration with Berlin-based empowering ceramics brand, POWER POTTERY. Viola Hänsel, the designer behind POWER POTTERY, has chosen to focus particularly on under-represented female body features with the aim of normalizing them, celebrating the body in all its facets. powerpottery.de